Investment Philosophy/Asset Allocation Strategy

The Vermont Community Foundation invests its assets to foster strong support of the community's current needs while also providing resources for future generations. The Foundation intends to achieve this objective via a well-diversified asset allocation strategy executed using highly capable investment managers combined with index funds.

* The Target Allocation was recently adopted and the portfolio allocations will be shifted in this direction over time.

The Foundation's portfolio was constructed with the following concepts in mind:

- Allocate the majority of the portfolio to asset classes with high long-term returns, i.e. equity asset classes
- Consistently utilize meaningful asset class diversification to achieve return objectives during a variety of economic and market conditions.
- Avoid attempts to predict short-term market behavior via market timing strategies.
- Retain world-class investment managers within the socially responsible universe who are expected to out-perform index funds over most three to five year periods. In areas where the Foundation does not believe meaningful or reliable above benchmark performance is available, index strategies are used.

Current Market/Performance Commentary

As of the end of September, calm continued to rule markets with both domestic stocks and the dollar producing solid returns thus far in 2018. Outside of the U.S., markets were considerably weaker as macroeconomic and political events have dominated the narrative. The list of issues is quite lengthy but is led by changes to U.S. trade policy and by the crisis of confidence occurring in various emerging markets.

Writing in October, a meaningful upward shift in global interest rates has altered market conditions on a global basis. While no one enjoys negative returns, periods of market stress and turmoil have long provided outsized opportunities for patient investors such as the Foundation. This time is no different with the largest challenge being the vast array of areas that now seem well on their way to becoming attractively priced.
